Don't forget the Hancock Library's Holiday Tree Gala

A poinsettia tree, butterfly ornaments made from crab shells, a stained glass tree, food and other interesting items highlight the decorations on the trees on display at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library's Ninth Annual Holiday Tree Gala.

The event is set for Sunday, December 7, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

A display of menorahs and other Hanukkah items will be on display in the library's display case. The menorahs are courtesy of Alison Gorlin, Diana and Jack Gorlin, Avra O'Dwyer of Etc. Etc., Betsy Pincus of Bay Crafts and Kathy Pinn of That Cute Little Shoppe.

Holiday singalong music will be led by Donna Hutchings of Gulfport on the piano, while Santa, Mrs. Claus and elves hear the wishes of the children. Louie St. Louis the Alligator, the library system's mascot, will also visit with the children. More than 65 local businesses, organizations and schools will display decorated trees throughout the building.

"This is our ninth annual Holiday Tree Gala, and each year we see new and interesting trees," said Prima Plauché, library system director. "We invite the public to visit the library and enjoy an afternoon of music and activities."

A standard flower show, It's for the Birds, will be presented by the Bay-Waveland Garden Club from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. in the Seal Meeting Room.

Nancy Artigues, Suzi Lee, Carter Church, Bobbie Tate and Tish Williams will serve as judges for the Holiday Tree Gala. They will choose winners in 11 categories, including Best in Show, Most Creative Tree and the Designer Award.

The Voices of Deliverance Choir from the Power House of Deliverance Church will perform at 2 p.m., and the Holmes Chapel United Methodist Church Choir will perform at 3 p.m.

Further information on the Library's Holiday Tree Gala is available by calling Jamie Elston at 467-5282.

Tree Lighting at Kiln Library

The holiday season will officially open on Tuesday, December 9, at 6 p.m. at the Kiln Public Library's fourth annual Community Tree Lighting.

The event is hosted by the Hancock County Library System Board of Trustees, the Library Foundation of Hancock County and the Kiln Library Advisory Board.

The Hancock High School Choir, under the direction of Rita Wilson, will provide musical entertainment for the event and the Hancock North Central Elementary Chorus, under the direction of Jackie Necaise, will perform in the Meeting Room. Diamondhead-Kiln Cub Scout Pack 20 will provide assistance, along with Hancock High's JROTC and Diamondhead-Kiln's Boy Scouts Troop 20.

Santa will arrive at the library via a fire truck provided courtesy of the Kiln Volunteer Fire Department.

"We want this to be a community family event," said Prima Plauché, library system director. "Families are urged to stop by the Kiln Public Library, pick up an ornament packet, put it together as a family and bring it back by Tuesday to place on the library's children's tree."

Further information on the Library's Community Tree Lighting is available by calling Sandra Ladner at 255-1724.

AN AP OPINION
EXCHANGE
BY CRYSTAL DUPRE
Laurel Leader-Call

As I understand, our brave men and women of the military live by the unwritten code of "God, Country, Corps."

This code serves as a reminder of the order in which individual soldiers are to serve. It would serve us all well if our government officials would adopt a similar code: "God, Country, Political Party."

Unfortunately, much of what we read or hear about our elected officials may lead us to believe that their code is "Self, Political Party, Country." God doesn't even make the list. The rivalry between the Democrats and the Republicans has become as bitter as the rivalry between Ole Miss and Mississippi State, or Auburn and Alabama. If you don't believe it, look how the U.S. Senate has handled the Charles Pickering judicial nomination.

Oh, there are a few in both parties who are willing to support what they think is right for our country, despite how their particular party tells them to vote.

When a politician votes against the "party line," it makes news.

Most other politicians won't cross that line, sometimes because of ideological issues, but often because they are afraid to lose the money or power provided by the political party.

Too often, we elect not leaders, but followers. And that is our own fault.

California has been the butt of many jokes over the last couple of years. However, the voters of California said, "Enough is enough!" and voted to recall party line Democratic Gov. Gray Davis. In his place, the voters selected Hollywood actor Arnold Schwarzenegger. Arnold ran as a Republican, but his views really don't match up well against the perceived Republican party line. From what I've read and heard, Arnold was not particularly well-regarded by either the Democratic or Republican elite.

Gov. Schwarzenegger has appointed both Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives, to his administration. What he is apparently trying to do is bring people together in order to benefit the state, not the party.

It is my hope that Haley Barbour brings a similar mind-set of "state before party" to Mississippi.

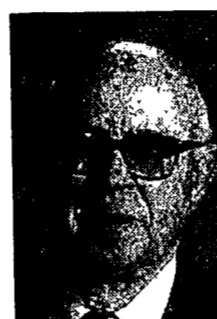

Remembering Pearl Harbor and the brave men and women who were there

I can recall the radio messages from 62 years ago today, announcing the Japanese Attack on Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands.

As a youngster, I never really even heard of Pearl Harbor, prior to the surprise attack.

In 1978, I had the honor of interviewing two who were in the Navy at Pearl Harbor during the attack: The late William (Bill) Sanders, an aviation machinist on the U.S.S. Curtis, moored about 100 yards from the runway of Ford Island; and his wife Betty, who was a military dependent and asleep at their Waikiki Beach home.

In 1991, the 50th anniversary of the Japanese Attack, Kenneth McKenna, who was the Chief Quarter Master on the Arizona, told his story in company of his friend Sanders. The two had met years before, when McKenna moved to Waveland from New Orleans, both being members of the Main Street United Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis. The Sanderses resided in Bay St. Louis.

As most of you know, the Arizona still lays submerged as a monument to the men and women who lost their lives at Pearl Harbor.

McKenna said, "I was waiting on the deck to go ashore for a barbecue and not paying much attention, as the harbor was full of Liberty Boats taking troops from the battleships ashore. As the first wave of planes came into view, they were flying low, and someone spotted the insignia of the Rising Sun and yelled, 'They are Japanese planes.'"

"Things happened so fast in the next three or four minutes, it was a mad house," McKenna recalled.

A little after 6:30 a.m. reveille, Sanders, aboard the Curtis, was preflighting the ship's plane, an OS2U1, when he heard an explosion on Ford Island and the loud speakers blared, "All hands general quarters."

McKenna said, "We took two fish (torpedoes) in the side, next we took a bomb that went down the stack. It blew the magazine off the number turret. The next thing I knew I was in the water."

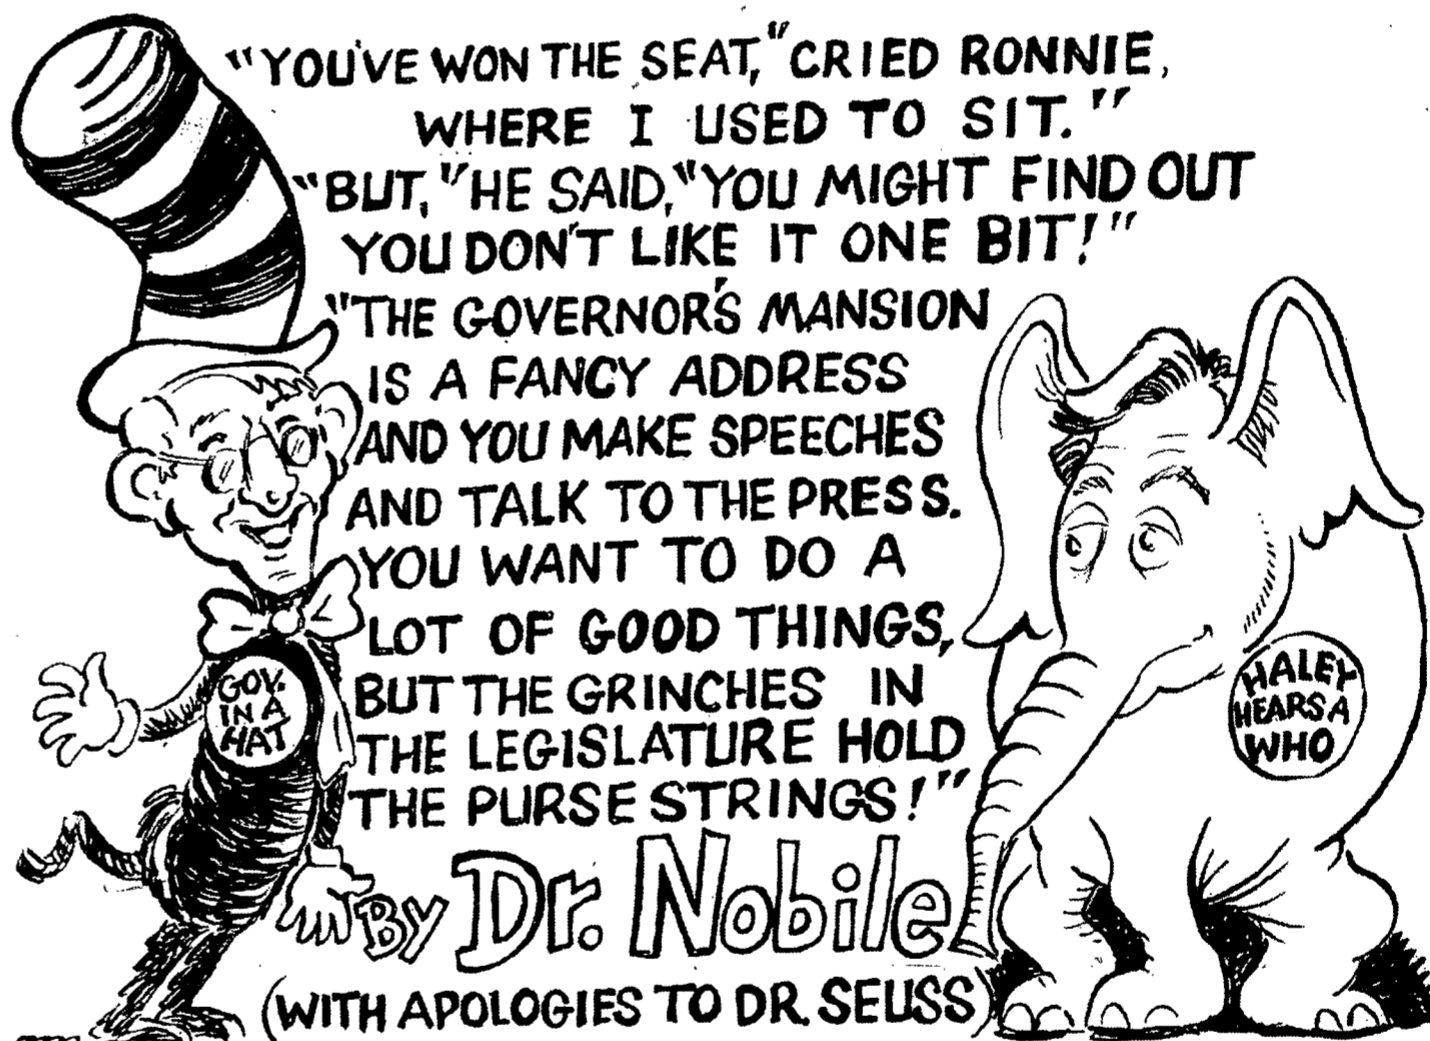

"I shut the engine off on my plane. Machine gun fire from a Japanese plane destroyed my plane. The Curtis was the first ship to be struck by a Kamikaze in the war. About 20 minutes later, then, a bomb struck the ship and the concussion knocked me down. I received shrapnel in my left arm, face and both hands when the bomb hit the deck," Sanders recalled.

"I was awakened by the noise, I heard what I thought was an imitation of President Roosevelt saying, 'The Island is under attack.' 'All residents are asked to stay in their houses' This was until I turned on my radio and heard the message repeated," Mrs. Sanders remembered.

She said the folks in their neighborhood had been making home records for entertainment and some were impressions of President Roosevelt.

Letters to the Editor

Lt. Gov. Candidate playing the race card

Editor:
After watching Barbara Blackman's concession speech on Nov. 6, 2003, I felt impelled to reply to her contentions about the voters of Mississippi.

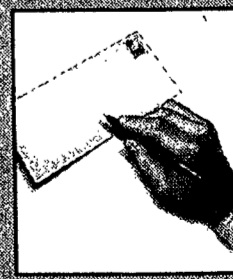

First, and most importantly, I believe that most people find it easier to blame external forces for their situation than to be self reflective and take personal responsibility. Barbara Blackman is the perfect example of this principle.

In Blackman's concession speech this date, she contends that she lost the election do to the "pigment" of her skin and further stated that the voters of Mississippi were still not ready to elect a black leader to state office in 2003. These comments should be offensive to every voter of Mississippi. To say that these comments were ludicrous is a gross understatement.

Mrs. Blackman, through her negative campaign, poor debate performances and her abortion blunder lost the election all by herself. Her race, as a potential Lt. Governor, never came into play for me. Sixty-one percent of Mississippi voters felt that Amy Tuck was the better candidate for said position. Mrs. Blackman showed no respect for the voters of Mississippi or the process with her most recent comments.

My question to Mrs. Blackman is whether she would have given credit to the pigment of her skin had she won the election or whether she just plays the race card in defeat only? Lets remember the behavior displayed by Mrs. Blackman after her most recent loss in case she seeks public office in the future.

Quotes--Pearl Harbor

Sanders were career Navy Chiefs and lived to an old age.

In 1942, McKenna was also a victim of a German submarine torpedo in the Gulf of Mexico, offshore from Houma, LA.

He was a member of an armed guard crew on Merchant Ship McTarnahan, a tanker on its way to pick up a load of fuel from Bay Town, Texas. The tanker went down, but no one was injured or killed in the sinking.

It was a great honor for me to have interviewed the Sanders' and McKenna, people who were at Pearl Harbor on that fateful day. This is something I will always remember, as they did until the day they died.

Do not forget the big Holiday Tree Gala this afternoon at the Bay St. Louis/County Library, 1 to 4 p.m.

This is a great time to view very beautifully decorated Christmas trees and meet with old friends and make new acquaintances.

Of course, youngsters will want to visit with Santa and give him their Christmas wishes.

Our library staff does a fine job each year with the Holiday Tree Gala and so many from the area respond to the call.

Remember the time, 1 to 4 p.m. this afternoon.

On Tuesday night, the Kiln Community Tree Lighting will take place at 6 p.m.

Santa will also make his visit and meet and greet all the youngsters.

This is a big event for Kiln area residents and there will be Christmas caroling and a great time for all who attend.

On Saturday, December 13, the Waveland Civic Association will sponsor its 7th Annual Christmas parade.

The parade forms on Central near the ball field and will roll at 4 p.m.

The parade route is Central to Lafite Drive, Lafite to Beach Blvd., Beach to Coleman Avenue, Coleman to Central where it will disband.

Leading the parade will be the Civic Association's 2003 Grand Marshall Jerry West and Colleen Heather Burge.

Jay Fountain, association president, reports that members have been busy getting the floats ready with beautiful lights and festive decorations for the special Christmas parade.

Anyone wishing to participate in the parade can contact Fountain at 467-2198, or David Garcia at 467-2042 for an application.

PRCC, local leaders work together to improve Hancock education resources

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors, at a recent meeting, asked the Hancock Chamber's Education Committee, led by Dr. Sherry Ponder, to work with officials at Pearl River Community College (PRCC) to develop a plan of action to provide greater access to post high school learning for area residents. "This effort is critical to our community because education leads to economic development," said Dr. Ponder.

Since February, community, corporate and governmental leaders in Hancock County have been exploring the options to consider. Dr. William Lewis, President of Pearl River Community College (PRCC) and Frank Ladner, President of the PRCC Board have been a key part of the team to build a greater PRCC presence in Hancock County.

This planning effort is an initiative of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the Hancock Chamber's Education Committee, the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission, Stennis Space Center's (SSC) Executive Council and the Center of Higher Learning, and PRCC.

"The Board of Supervisors should be commended for their leadership and vision to bring the public and private sector together to work toward this important common goal," said John P. Baxter of Hancock Bank and president of the Hancock Chamber.

Through a series of meetings and workshops, discussions have centered around methods that could be used to provide greater access to post high school education for all citizens of Hancock County to include higher education, community education and workforce development, with specific emphasis on Stennis Space Center.

Recently, the Executive Council of Stennis Space Center released a corporate strategic plan, which calls for doubling the number of personnel working at SSC by 2010. This would add another 4,500 jobs to the marketplace.

"We want to be sure that the workforce of Hancock County is prepared to take full advantage of growth opportunities we are anticipating for our area," said Rocky Pullman, President of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The education vision for Hancock County is being considered as a two-phase plan. The first phase will involve a partnership between Stennis Space Center's Center for Higher Learning and PRCC to expand the undergraduate courses currently offered at SSC to include a full associates degree and support for technical training to on-site agencies.

Cleon Lacefield of

Lockheed Martin, in his role as Chairman of the SSC Executive Council's Quality of Life Committee, with support from Dr. Peter Ranelli of the SSC's Center of Higher Learning led the effort to forge this plan with PRCC. The plan is still in formation and is expected to provide the current workforce at SSC with forward mobility. The plan also includes providing greater access to educational opportunities for all residents of Hancock County meaning, on and off site students will be able to access the courses offered.

The second phase of the educational vision for Hancock County could include the establishment of a "regional education center", located in a high-traffic and centrally located facility in Hancock County. Discussions of possible locations have included the former Wal-Mart building, which was recently purchased by a California developer. The developer is considering mixed-use options for the facility, which could include public and private tenants.

When plans are complete, the public will be informed on how to take advantage of these new and expanded educational opportunities in Hancock County.

To provide information and ideas on these concepts, the community is invited to contact the Hancock Chamber by sending an email to: tish@hancockchamber.org.

Cuevas -- grocery burns addition to ATF agents. I want to really thank everyone for their help and by working together we can get to the bottom of this," Adam said.

Store-owner Ronnie Cuevas said, "Since night of the fire, many have been so helpful. People stopped at the fire, at the store site, others came to our home, all offering their sympathy and their willingness to help."

Cuevas said the store was run by his wife Linda, in addition to seven employees, some of whom were part time, who all lost their jobs and he was really concerned for them. "The loss of the store will affect many in the community," Cuevas said.

Joyce Wall's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dean, operated a community store many years at the site, then sold to her parents Mr. and Mrs. Horace (Red) Davis, Sr., who changed the name to Davis Grocery and replaced it with a new structure about 1949. Wall said the store is no longer recognizable.

The community store changed ownership and name several times, but was always a family operation, according to Mrs. Wall, who spent all but ten years of her adult life as a store employee.

Cuevas Grocery has been operated by Ronnie and Linda Cuevas and their children for the past 19 years. Prior to the Cuevas' ownership, Shirley Woods operated it for seven years. Mrs. Woods sold to the Cuevas family.

Fire investigators were at the scene Friday and Saturday, seeking the cause of the fire.

The investigation includes County Fire Investigator Brian Adam, State Fire Marshall David Dry, and investigators from the ATF (The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives), and Hancock County.

On Friday, passers-by were shocked to see the smoke still rising from the rubble, as they traveled Highway 604 and slowed to look at the community's disaster.

Ronnie Cuevas is the Hancock County Sheriff Department's administrator. Not only residents of Pearlinton benefited from the store, which on Saturday Cuevas said was one of a very few left with that type of operation.

Cuevas' Grocery had a wide array of merchandise, meats, frozen foods, produce, hardware, some automotive products, gas, even a very popular deli that drew folks from all areas.

One resident said, at lunch time you could possibly see vehicles with all types of insignias.

Such as from the Mississippi and Louisiana Department

Transportations, Coast Electric, Wellman, G.E. Plastics, Entex, Surveyors, Stennis, Hancock Port & Harbor, 1-10 Welcome Center, etc. Those in addition to local residents. Many of the orders would be called in and pickup by fellow workers.

The fire was spotted around 9:30 p.m. Thursday by a West Hancock Fire Rescue Team that passed the store and saw smoke coming from the back of the building.

Responding to the fire included firefighters from West Hancock Fire, East Hancock Fire, Bayside Fire, Waveland Fire departments and also two units from St. Tammany Parish.

About Fitness

by Liz Perkinson
certified personal trainer

'Tis the season to put on the extra 5-10 pounds that Americans are prone to do between Thanksgiving and New Year's. Articles abound on how to eat healthier for weight control during the holiday season; however, there are always two sides to the weight loss/weight maintenance equation: the food side and the exercise side. To be in control of your weight, it is imperative to eat sensibly and exercise regularly. No amount of determination will make a weight loss/maintenance program be successful without pairing it with regular exercise.

While walking, treadmills and stationary bicycles have gained in popularity in recent years and are great for the cardio-respiratory system, they don't do enough to build lean muscle, because the upper body isn't utilized. Building muscle is a significant factor in weight loss because it increases your metabolism. Having more muscle causes a higher resting metabolic rate (which means your body burns more fat when you are at rest). Also, muscle is important for the prevention (or slowing) of osteoporosis.

Once we pass our twenties, we lose about 10 ounces of muscle tissue a year; this is not directly related to the aging process but rather to disuse of the muscles. You've heard the old adage: If you don't use it, you lose it.

which, along with the Gainesville Volunteers, became the nucleus of the Third Mississippi Infantry, a CSA regiment formed to defend the Mississippi Gulf Coast during the Civil War. The group served aboard gunboats in the sound in early 1862, and later that year skirmished at Pass Christian, Tangipahoa, La., Vicksburg, Baker's Creek and Big Black Bridge. The division fought in the 100-days battle during the Atlanta Campaign between May and September, 1864, and opposed Sherman's March to Meridian. It also took part in Hood's Middle Tennessee Campaign from October to December 1864.

It was during that campaign that Sones was killed on Nov. 30, 1864, at the Battle of Franklin, Tn. His comrades buried him in an unmarked grave near the battle site along with other fallen soldiers.

In the spring of 1866, according to the book "To Live & Die in Dixie," by H. Grady Howell, Jr., Col. John McGavock of Franklin "personally oversaw the reinterment of the scattered Confederate dead on the battlefield to his family's private cemetery at Carnton. McGavock took great pains to properly identify the remains of each of the deceased. The dead were then reburied, grouped by state."

After learning of McGavock's effort, Benjamin Sones traveled by Wagon to Franklin to reclaim his son's body, which was finally reinterred at Cedar Rest Cemetery.

According to Howell, "His pallbearers were the same comrades who had originally buried him at Franklin."

compare his career to a book, then the title would be Donaldson's Navy Adventure.

"I crossed six of the seven seas, went to six of the seven continents and all the way to the bottom of the ocean," said Donaldson. "I have had a blast ... due to the support of friends and family and my Navy family. I would recommend (the Navy) to any one who would like a life of adventure."

Donaldson began his

Navy career as a Midshipman in Vietnam. He was commissioned in 1975 at the US Naval Academy. He took command of the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command in November of 2000. Donaldson will take over as the director of the John C. Stennis Space Center on Jan. 5.

Changes on horizon for Pass Christian Harbor

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Several changes lie in store for the Pass Christian harbor in the near future.

Willie Davis, who began his duties as harbor master nearly two months ago, brought several requests to the Board of Aldermen's meeting on Dec. 2.

The board approved his first request to install gates on the few piers lacking them and lock all the gates, provided that all boat owners were given keys.

"This will help cut down on trespassing and burglary," Davis said. "People can't just walk onto a pier and help themselves."

Locking the gates will also help cut down on liability, he said.

His second request—to raise commercial and pleasure pier rates by 75 cents per foot met disapproval from the board. Alderman Chip McDermott said he did not want to raise rates now because he didn't want to heap on additional costs during a slow season.

Davis said the increase was needed because the harbor is currently operating at over $100,000 in the red. To support his request, Davis conducted a survey, which revealed that, Pass Christian's rates are the lowest on the Coast at $2.50 per foot for pleasure boats and $2 per foot for commercial boats. If raised to 75 cents, Pass Christian's rates would even out with other harbors and still be cheaper than others.

"It's inevitable that we raise pier rates because the harbor is operating at a deficit and should be self-supporting," said Alderman Donald Moore.

Moore said he would personally like to make sure that all stalls are rented, collections are at 100 percent and expenses are under control before rates are raised; however, he agreed that rates would probably need to go up.

Aldermen asked Davis to bring his request before the board again in March. This would give boat owners more of a warning about rising costs and allow them to prepare.

The board then tabled a request to amend the harbor ordinance to change the late period from 15 days to seven days for monthly fees, which are due on the first of each month. Although board members agreed with a proposed $25 late fee, they could not vote on the period change because the current lease stated a 15 day late period.

"A late fee will encourage (boat owners) to pay on time," Davis said.

With the current late period, Davis said by the time late notices have been sent out, it is almost time for next month's rent. He said a shorter late period would allow more time to send out notices.

The board approved Davis' final request, which was to change transient fees from $10.70 to $20 per night.

Several board members commended Davis for the work he has done so far, but said they did not want to make too many changes all at once.

A Message From Terry Latham
Hope Haven Children's Center

"IN CARE" AT CHRISTMAS

One of my favorite Christmas time movies is "The Bishop's Wife" with Cary Grant as an angel sent to earth in answer to a prayer by Pastor David Niven. The pastor had prayed for "guidance" because his fundraising efforts, especially with one very wealthy townswoman, were not going well and his planned grand cathedral that he wanted to build to glorify God was in danger.

It is a treat watching Cary Grant, as the angel, help bring focus to what is really important in the world with his mischievous grin as he captivated the Pastor's family, staff and friends. In the end, David Niven's character realizes that he has neglected his family and friends because of his focus on building a single building ... rather than building a community. The wealthy parishioner, with help from the angel, decides to give her money to programs that help the poor and needy children, rather than spend it on cold bricks and mortar in memory of a long lost love.

The movie ends on a happy symphony ... not just a note. Yet as "corny" as it may sound here in print and as lacking an "edge" that so many current Christmas movies have, it still embodies what the Christmas spirit means to me.

This year, as in seven previous years, children who have been abused and neglected in mind and body and spirit will find refuge and comfort at Hope Haven Children's Shelter. They have already begun decorating the shelter, with the assistance of volunteers from Grand Casino Biloxi and Gulfport. They are working on the handmade ornaments to grace the Hope Haven tree at the Library, and they have prepared their "wish list" with the same hopes and dreams that children everywhere do.

One difference is that the children do not know for sure where they will be at Christmas. What has brought them to Hope Haven, the abuse and neglect they have endured, was out of their control. And what happens to them and where they will go is equally out of their control. We will do our best to provide every child who is with us now and who enters the shelter through the Christmas season with the gifts they desire and with the gifts they need. Already several wonderful organizations and individuals have stepped forward to help. But we do not know what child will walk or be carried through our doors tomorrow and we keep our Christmas tree and Christmas spirit "up" until the end of January because we have children arrive after "the day" who did not get Christmas or presents where they came from.

The donations we receive this time of the year last us all year long and provides gifts for birthdays, to kids who come "home" with good grades, or who receive them just because they are kids. And after seven years, we find that one of the more useful types of gifts that we welcome, rather than just the toys themselves, are gift cards to the various local stores that allow us to go out and shop for the particular child we have in the shelter at the time. Also, we welcome gift cards to the local movie theater, KFC, McDonalds, Burger King and Dominos so we can "treat" the children on special occasions. We ask people not to bring stuffed animals due to the concerns over head lice. And we have listed a few items that if the readers feel moved to help with ... we would welcome.

Five local educators earn National Board Certification

Dr. Sherry M. Ponder, Diane Hurlbert, Kelley McKnight, Mary Ladner and Judith James have earned their profession's top honor by achieving National Board Certification.

As part of Mississippi's efforts to improve teacher quality and meet the federal requirements for a highly qualified teacher in every classroom, 301 state teachers earned National Board Certification®. With the new certificates, Mississippi now has a total of 1,761 National Board Certified Teachers® (NBCTs).

Ponder teaches in the Gulfport school district, Hurlbert and McKnight are in the Hancock school district, while Ladner and James teach in the Pass Christian district.

"Our state enjoys the distinction of having a high percentage of certified teachers who are leading the way in improving our schools and enriching the lives of our students," says U.S. Sen. Thad Cochran (R-MS).

"With our ranking as sixth in the nation for the cumulative number of National Board Certified Teachers, Mississippi continues to be a leader in education," says Gov. Ronnie Musgrove (D-MS). "These 301 teachers have worked hard to enhance their skills, which will have a direct impact on the students in their classrooms. Students will benefit from their hard work and I'm proud of the effort they've made to achieve this certification."

This year, Mississippi ranks seventh in the number of NBCTs in the United States. Other leading states include North Carolina (1,523), Florida (1,448), South Carolina (867), California (689), Georgia (513), Ohio (383), Illinois (254), Oklahoma (226) and Kentucky (189). Nationwide, 8,196 teachers earned their profession's top honor this year by achieving National Board Certification. This achievement brings the total number of NBCTs to 32,131.

"By successfully completing the process for National Board Certification, these exemplary educators have demonstrated their dedication and commitment to quality teaching in Mississippi classrooms," says State Superintendent of Education Henry Johnson. "Our state appreciates their outstanding professional achievements and significant contributions to the children they teach."

"The high number of Mississippi teachers participating in this program reflects their determination and commitment to strengthen education in our state," says U.S. Rep. Roger F. Wicker (R-MS). "These teachers are playing a vital role in preparing our children for the future, and achieving the high standards set by the National Board represents another component in efforts to ensure our children have the best quality education available."

Founded 16 years ago, NBPTS is an independent, nonprofit, nonpartisan and non-governmental organization dedicated to advancing the quality of teaching and learning. National Board Certification is the highest credential in the teaching profession. A voluntary process established by NBPTS, certification is achieved through a rigorous performance-based assessment that takes between one and three years to complete and measures what accomplished teachers should know and be able to do.

"Teacher quality has never been more important, and the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) is the only organization of its kind helping states to identify and certify highly accomplished teachers," says NBPTS President Joseph A. Aguerrebere. "Through National Board Certified Teachers, states and communities are realizing the enormous benefits of using National Board Certification as a tool to attract, reward and retain highly accomplished teachers as required by the federal No Child Left Behind Act."

"NBPTS celebrates and congratulates all teachers who went through the rigorous National Board Certification process," says NBPTS Board Chair Roy E. Barnes. "This impressive achievement is widely recognized at the national, state and local levels as a benchmark for teacher quality. This is also an indication that policymakers, educators, business and community leaders, and parents recognize that when it comes to a quality education, quality teaching matters."

Forty-nine states and more than 500 school districts across the nation have implemented policies and regulations to recruit, reward and retain National Board Certified Teachers. "In this environment of economic concern, the National Board is extremely grateful to the growing number of states, school districts and municipalities that support National Board Certification and the impact it has on the teaching profession and improved student learning," says Barnes.

"It is important to understand that the National Board Certification process not only identifies accomplished teachers but also is a profound professional development experience," says Aguerrebere. "This is a process that forces teachers to demonstrate how their activities, both inside and outside of the classroom, improve student achievement."

In its effort to measure the impact of National Board Certification and the effects of NBCTs on the quality of teaching and student achievement in America's schools, NBPTS has engaged in an independent, rigorous research agenda. There have been more than 140 studies, reports and papers commissioned on the value of the National Board Certification process, as well as its standards and assessments. Findings and results from a number of research studies are expected to be completed in 2004 and 2005.

DOE locates at Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant

The United States Department of Energy (DOE), Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) has recently signed a long-term contract with Mason Technologies Inc., a Day & Zimmermann Company, to occupy approximately 60,000 square feet at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant located on the John C. Stennis Space Center. The building once used as an engineering support facility during the days of ammunition production will now be converted over to warehouse space for the SPR. Improvements to meet DOE's needs will be made with funding available through the 1992 Congressional mandated Armament Retooling and Manufacturing Support Act (ARMS). DOE joins a long list of tenants at the facility to include The Boeing Company, Naval Oceanographic Office, Power Dynamics Inc., Navy Human Resource Center Southeast and Coastal Precision Machining, Inc.

The goals of the ARMS initiative include maintaining defense capabilities, reducing the Army's cost of ownership; and enhancing economic opportunities within communities surrounding the Government-owned, contractor-operated plants. Under ARMS, incentives such as facility enhancements and loan guarantees can be used to attract commercial & government tenants into available office, storage and production space at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant. Enhancements made under ARMS have included renovating buildings to current health and safety codes, upgrading electrical service, installing communication connectivity and improving accessibility.

More information on the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant is available on the Internet at "www.msaap.com".

Manning lays claim to the coveted Conerly Trophy for second time

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

Eli Manning, the record-setting senior quarterback from The University of Mississippi, claimed the Conerly Trophy on Thursday, December 4, at the Bayview Hotel in Biloxi. The Conerly Trophy is presented annually to the state's top collegiate football player chosen by a statewide panel of media voters. The award is named for former Ole Miss All-American and NFL All-Pro Charlie Conerly. The Clarksdale native played for the Rebels in 1942 and 1946-47 under the legendary Johnny Vaught. Conerly's Rebels won the 1947 SEC championship and he earned All-American honors following the season. He played with the New York Giants from 1948-1961 and earned Rookie of the Year in 1948, several All-Pro honors and led his team to the NFL championship in 1958.

Manning beat out senior linebacker Rod Davis of USM and redshirt freshman quarterback Scott Eyster of Delta State University. Davis was the recipient of the Conerly Trophy in 2002.

Manning, who won the award in 2001, became the first two-time winner and the first three-time finalist of the award on Thursday.

Upon receiving the award, the humble Manning stated, "My father (former Ole Miss All-American and NFL All-Pro Archie Manning) told me that Mr. Conerly was a man of few words. It is only appropriate that my acceptance speech won't be long. It's an honor to win the Conerly Trophy."

Eli professed that winning a second Conerly Trophy was an extremely special honor, as well as, being in the same company of players such as Rod Davis and Scott Eyster who also had tremendous seasons.

Manning has had a season that dreams are made of. He returned to Ole Miss for his senior season bypassing the millions of dollars that the NFL had to offer. He returned simply to finish what he loves the most - playing college football and being with his teammates. Later in the night Manning continued, "I love college football and being with my teammates. I wanted to come back for my senior year because of them and accomplish the goals we set out to do as freshmen. I would like to be playing for an SEC title and we got as close as you could. I have no regrets. We worked as hard as we could and now we have one more game together - the Cotton Bowl. That is all I am focused on right now. After that, then I will think about the next step."

Archie and Olivia Manning along with several members of the Ole Miss Football family made the trip to see Eli secure the hardware. Ole Miss Associate Athletic Directors Langston Rogers and Eddie Crawford, Loyalty Foundation Director George Smith, and head football coach David Cutcliffe.

Cutcliffe talked about his star quarterback, "Eli is perhaps the most humble player I have ever been around that is at the same time the most sought after player. The man who came back for his senior year is his teammates. He wanted to be around them and accomplish the goals with them. When we were 2-2, it was the seniors who gave us confidence. Led by Eli, they made a commitment to do the right things. At that point, I knew we had the type of people we needed to bounce back and have a tremendous season. We took our shot at the title and came up short; however, that does not tarnish what Eli and the rest of the seniors have accomplished. It is one of those teams that you will always remember. It is that aspect of team play that will always follow Eli - he plays for the team. He is the epitome of what college football is all about."

Manning had his best season as a Rebel setting 45 school records. He finished 2003 with 3,341 yards completing 253-of-410 passing attempts with 27 touchdowns. He threw only 9 interceptions in 2003.

The Conerly Trophy was not the only award that Manning claimed on Thursday. Earlier in the day, he was notified that he had been named the Johnny Unitas Golden Arm Award winner which is presented to the top senior college quarterback. He also is one of three finalists for the Davey O'Brien Award which is presented to the nation's best quarterback, the Walter Camp Award, and the SEC Player of the Year. Manning also has a chance at being named one of the five finalists for the Heisman Trophy which will be presented on December 13th in New York.

For the record, the Conerly Trophy stands 3 1/2 inches taller than the Heisman Trophy. It is a fact that Executive Director Michael Rubenstein likes to point out that "...no Conerly Trophy winner has to look up to anybody."

Rod Davis, a 2003 finalist and winner of the 2002 Conerly Trophy, finished the season with 148 total tackles with 103 solo stops. He was also named the C-USA Defensive player of the Year earlier on Thursday.

Scott Eyster, a finalist from Delta State, passed for 3,485 yards and 30 touchdowns with 250 completions in 396 attempts.

It was a night of firsts for the Conerly Trophy which is give out by the Mississippi Sports Foundation and the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame and Museum in conjunction with Cellular South.

This was the first time in history that the trophy was awarded in South Mississippi. And, it was the first time that the winner has won the bronze statue more than once.

One of the objectives of hosting the event in South Mississippi was to increase the awareness and visibility of the Museum in the state. Museum executive director Michael Rubenstein commented, "We feel that we accomplished our goal of increasing people's awareness of the museum and its visibility in the state. We started talking to people in January and realized that they did not know much about the museum. All those associated with the museum feel that we have cleared that hurdle and have made some solid friendships down here. This event was a huge success and the people of South Mississippi should feel good about its success. The business community and the media were major contributors to the success of this event."

The impressive show drew a crowd of over 350 people paying $125 per plate. It was the largest crowd for the event since the inaugural presentation eight years ago.

From the start, this event couldn't possibly lose. The site was a spectacular choice. The last two winners were almost certain to be finalists again while Eyster shocked the state with his phenomenal performance in 2003.

While the event is not slated to return to the Coast in 2004, Rubenstein feels that South Mississippi will host the event again and soon.

Bay High's Lewis and Pirates' Johnson named MVPs of Division 8 Class 4A

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

Several area girdiron athletes were recently honored with being named to the All Division 8 Class 4A football team. Lorenzo Lewis of Bay High and Ledael Johnson were tabbed as Offensive Most Valuable Player and Defensive Most Valuable Player, respectively.

Lewis, a junior wide receiver at Bay High, led the area with over 1,150 yards receiving and 15 touchdowns. Johnson, a senior linebacker for the Pirates, recorded a 100+ tackle season as the Pirates advanced to the Class 4A state playoffs.

Other selections on the first-team offense were Bay High quarterback Zack Ferry and SSC trio FB Matt Hoda, WR Michael Cure, and PK Michael Kivlan.

Ferry threw for 2,089 yards and 25 touchdowns in 2003 while Hoda ripped off 699 yards rushing and 9 scores from the fullback position.

Cure hauled in over 40 catches for 756 yards and 6 TDs while Kivlan paced area kickers with 7-for-11 field goals and 16-for-21 PATs.

Other defensive selections for the area were DL Tony Henderson of Pass Christian, LB Lee Klein and LB Jordan Ellis of SSC, DB Chad Musgrove of Pass Christian, DB Floyd Dedeaux of SSC, and P Kyle Moran of Bay High.

Henderson, a dominating defensive lineman, also carried a load for the Pirates on offense. Klein led the area in tackles with 133 stops. Ellis recorded 105 tackles in 2003 while Musgrove was a versatile athlete for the Pirates on the gridiron. Dedeaux, also a two-way player, recorded just under 50 tackles for the season and had two interceptions.

Moran handled the punting duties for the Tigers and averaged 39 yards per kick.

The Sea Coast Echo

Pay attention to the weather when fishing this time of year

Well, fall is just about over and winter is fast approaching. Water temperatures are hovering in the high fifties to low sixties, and some mornings that seems much warmer than the near freezing air temperature.

My routine during this time of year is to keep a close eye on the weather and fish the two or three days between fronts when the wind is blowing out of the south or south east. The other three or four days during the week are spent holed up waiting for the cold north wind to stop. Fog in the morning is actually welcome, because if it is really cold, there won't be any, and I can't stand the cold.

Another great indicator of falling water temperatures is the presence of small boats in the Jourdan River and Bayou Caddy areas trolling deep for large speckled trout. While I prefer the slightly faster paced action of sight casting to reds in the marsh, it is pretty cool boating speckled trout 22 inches and larger practically underneath the I-10 bridge and within five minutes of several major boat launches and marinas.

While many folks, myself included, who attempt this method of fishing for the first, second, or third time usually return home empty handed, there is a quiet

THE SEA COAST ECHO FISHING REPORT

by Capt. Mike Thompson
www.shorethingcharters.com

brotherhood of anglers who have perfected this method and more often than not return home with quite a bounty of large trout.

So if on the coldest of mornings you spot your neighbor loading his small boat and heading for the launch, it may be a good idea to try and weasel a trip or two out of him. While you might not learn everything, it could certainly be worth braving the cold to learn just a few tricks to get started in this deep winter endeavor.

Action in the Biloxi Marsh will remain steady during this transition time from fall to winter. Larger trout have finally moved into the marsh and the redfish are just as cooperative as ever.

General areas that I have been focusing on include Bayou Biloxi, Bayou Magill, Mosquito Inlet, Bayou Domingo, and even as far as Lake Eugenie when necessary.

Water depth has ranged from 15 feet to 6 feet, with several fish being caught in shallower waters in the afternoon. The spots that are producing best are ones where deeper water of a bayou or hole meets next to a flat or shallow point.

Position your boat on the point or flat and fish back in the hole, working your way up the ledge. The bait of choice remains live shrimp when available, however they have been pretty hard to come by on this side of the Bay Bridge lately.

On a side note I did speak with Don over at Bay Marina and he is going to keep live shrimp through the month of January. On the other hand, cocahoe minnows have been much easier to come by, however I don't find them as effective as the shrimp.

A gauntlet of plastics will continue to work well including glow DOA shrimp, H&H black/chartreuse cocahoe, H&H purple/white cocahoe, and Zoom Flukes in shad colors. I have been rigging my plastics on either 3/8 or 1/4 ounce jig heads depending on the water depth and current speed.

In the mornings, I am rigging the baits on Carolina rigs and focusing on the bottom, while occasionally switching to a rattling cork rigged with live shrimp to test out the waters.

If the larger trout have moved higher in the water column, I want to make certain that I am there to greet them. Many redfish have been caught in the same areas using these same methods so stay prepared, a battle with a 10 pound red is much different than a battle with a 1 pound trout!

Good leader material is very important when fishing these areas because most of them are oyster-covered bottoms that provide plenty of opportunities for fish to shred your line. I recommend 15 or 20 pound test fluorocarbon, not only because of its low visibility below the waters surface, but also because of its incredible abrasion resistance.

Additionally, the colder water has brought the sheepshead in thick in the Biloxi Marsh right now and you will find them in many of the same areas that I have described above.

If you are getting hits on live shrimp that feel like very small fish, try going to a smaller hook. After doing so you are probably going to find that those "small fish" are in fact three pound or better sheepshead.

I know some of you are thinking I might be crazy for recommending such a fish, however with a little patience at the cleaning table they can certainly provide some tasty fillets, not to mention the great light tackle action.

Until next week be safe and please remember to be courteous to your fellow fishermen.

Dianthus rated tops for cool color

SOUTHERN GARDENING
BY NORMAN WINTER
MSU HORTICULTURIST
Central Mississippi
Research & Extension Center

At our house the dianthus have really started to show out, and I would encourage all gardeners to make use of this wonderful cool-season flower.

I say cool season, but today's dianthus are a far cry from the ones we used to call pinks. Today by virtue of hybridizing species, they are tough from the standpoint of both cold and added-heat tolerance. This hybridization brought together species from China (chinensis) and Southern Europe (barbatus) for a great new plant.

Many gardeners don't give this group of plants a fair shake based on their former reputation. Gardeners find they often endure the summer and become short-lived perennials. How tough are they? They've received awards for toughness, including the Louisiana Select, Fluoroselect Quality Mark and All America Selections awards, and they were outstanding performers in University of Georgia trials.

Known as hybrid pinks, these plants give outstanding color in red, pink, white and every blend of the three. In addition to their cheerful colors, they also have a delightful fragrance.

These hybrid pinks prefer well-drained, well-worked beds rich in organic matter. When preparing a bed, incorporate 2 pounds of a slow-release 12-6-6 fertilizer with minor nutrients per 100 square feet of bed space. Give plenty of sun for optimal blooms. Plant in the fall or spring at the same depth they are growing in the container. Space plants 6 to 8 inches apart.

Lightly side-dress with fertilizer once a month to keep them growing and producing. Keep hybrid pinks mulched to conserve moisture, deter weed growth, give added cold protection and keep summer soil temperatures cooler. Deadhead to keep the plant looking tidy and the flower stems coming.

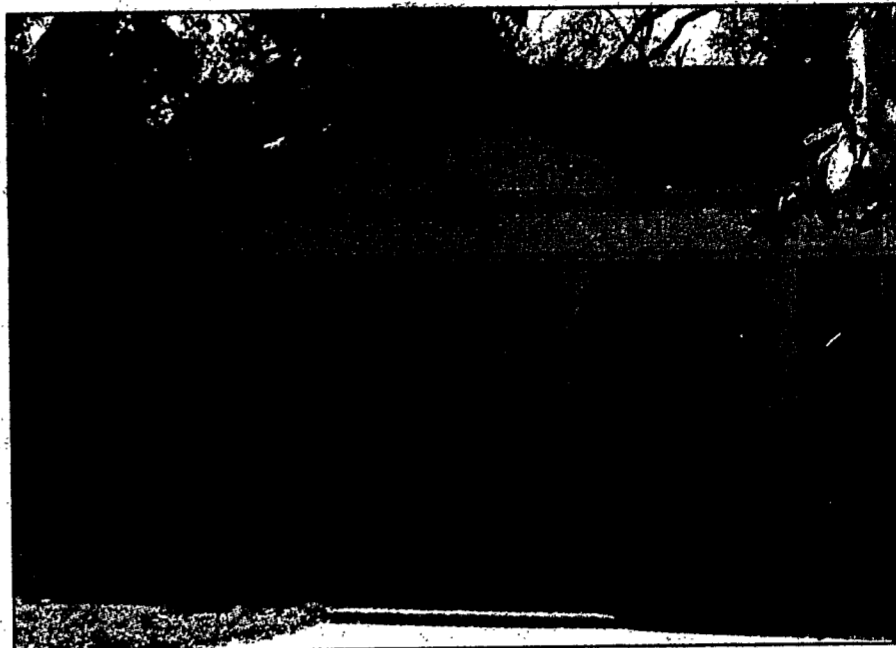

Dianthus colors allow for partnering with cool-season crops like pansies, violas, snapdragons, and flowering kale or cabbage. Go for patriotic combinations of red and white varieties with plants like blue lobelia. Use with dusty miller, early spring petunias and allysum.

On the importance of KEEPING a return ticket

When I worked for the Government, my work required extensive traveling. As a result, to ease the pressure on our marriage, I tried to take Stella with me on at least one foreign trip a year. On one trip to Italy, she couldn't come with me, and I had to go without her.

After spending several days getting the things done that I needed to do, I went with two Italian friends to their weekend place in the hills 40 miles east of the city. My room that night was the upper floor of a small stone house almost a thousand years old. I slept on a straw mattress and was warmed by a fire in the small raised fireplace by the bed. Outside my window I could hear a waterfall and a bird that sang most of the night.

The next morning we had an Italian breakfast of coffee, toast and a piece of fruit and went to the rear of the house to look at my friend small vineyard. He showed me the rows of grapes and told me that if I came back in the fall we would make wine from the grapes using the old wine press under the village church.

At midday we went to the local restaurant and sat in a side room with locals from the tiny village. There were just a few large tables and no real menu. People sat wherever there was room to sit and were served as the dishes came out of the kitchen. Through the room's windows, I could see the valley before us and the hills on either side. I knew it was going to be a long meal and relaxed and enjoyed the warmth of good food and wonderful people.

My friend's wife was upset that Stella had not been able to make the trip with me.

She said so to me and also to the people that joined us at our table, and to the restaurant proprietor at the bar as well as the cook in the kitchen.

I sat explaining why Stella wasn't with me for perhaps the tenth time when I heard my friend's wife's voice over the noise in the room, "Stella! How are you?" I looked up to see her on the phone in the corner of the room. She had called Stella in Mississippi!!

I quickly got up to go talk to her myself, when someone stopped me to say hello. When I looked again, the proprietor had started to talk to Stella explaining something about the menu, then the cook came on to clarify what he had said, then someone I knew couldn't speak English, started singing her an Italian song.

It seemed everyone in the room got to talk to Stella before I did that day.

Later when I returned home, Stella told me about having the wonderful experience of going to bed in Mississippi and waking to the phone ringing and finding herself for a little over a half hour in a small village in the hills of Italy.

Sometimes, however, even with the best of company and in the most pleasant of places, a person wants to be back where his cup of coffee is made by his own coffee machine and the dog that barks at them, does so because she wants him to throw her a Frisbee.

Let me explain with an example, I once had a six-month position at a University in Mallorca, Spain. It was a beautiful island and I was given a car and an apartment one block from the Royal Palace on a quiet square. After three months, Stella joined me for a few weeks.

We had a wonderful time. It was in early spring and we made the most of her stay in visiting obscure places on the island.

Then she left to go home and I found myself all alone on an island in the Mediterranean thousands of miles from Stella and our home in Mississippi. After a couple weeks, I went in to sit and talk with my sponsor.

"Joaquin," I said after reviewing some work we had done together. "I think I'm going to have to go home."

"But Paul, you still have almost two months to go. Everything is going playing with or cuddling a dog or cat, or giving obedience lessons to an unruly or unsocialized dog, or maybe your talent lies more in helping to organize an event for fun or fundraising.

For more information of fostering call Friends president Mickey Evans at 467-7703 or to help at the shelter call Renee Lick at 467-0230. And don't forget to come out to this weekends events.

extremely well. Why do you want to leave? Do you want to go to Barcelona and visit with Jordi for a couple days? We can arrange that very easily."

I explained that I had really done all the work that we had set out to do together, that there really wasn't any more reason to stay, and that my work at my home office was piling up and fax messages were insufficient in letting me catch up (Italy did not have e-mail then).

I said everything to him except the real reason that I just wanted to go home. I stayed another week and then caught the plane that started my way back to a house on the beach in a small town on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

In truth, it is nice to travel. But when you get down to it, Dorothy said it best when she clicked her ruby red slippers and said,

"There's no place like home! There's no place like home! There's no place like home!"

Happy Anniversary, house will always be our Stella, with you our home.

Waveland site. They also helped initiate the Gumbo Fund for sick and injured animals to provide treatment and training to help them be more adaptable.

Statistics show that the fate of some 75 to 80 percent of the animals that come through the shelter is euthanization. In September of the 359 animals brought to the shelter 257 were euthanized. In October of the 311 animals that came to the shelter 238 were euthanized. To help reduce these numbers, all pets being adopted at the shelter will

The Telestar series was chosen as a Louisiana Select award winner. The Ideal series has proven the best in University of Georgia trials. Ideal Carmine and Ideal Rose were chosen as Fluoroselect Quality Mark winners, and Ideal Violet an All America Selections award winner.

The Melody series offers several choices, and the Melody Pink was chosen as an All America Selections winner.

Lastly, don't forget about the 2001 Mississippi Medallion award winning Bouquet Purple. Technically this one is called an interspecific hybrid, but who cares? When a plant is chosen as a Mississippi Medallion winner and the Minnesota Select Perennial Plant of the Year, it must be tough.

Bouquet Purple is a tall cut-flower type dianthus that is cold tolerant yet able to endure a Mississippi summer.

The flowers are a bright, bold, cheerful, hot pink-purple color.

To create the prettiest display, set out in large drifts of three to four plants per square foot. The hot pink-purple color allows combinations with a number of plants, especially pansies like Purple Rain.

Dianthus have become staples in my garden and I hope they will at your home, too.

Russell is a 2001 graduate of Bay High School of Bay St. Louis, Miss. and joined the Navy in August 2001.

Marine Corps Lance Cpl. Robert C. Day, a 1999 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, Bay St. Louis, Miss., recently returned from an eight-month deployment embarked onboard the USS Iwo Jima, while assigned to the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), based in Camp

Lejeune, N.C.

Day was one of more than 4,000 Atlantic Fleet Sailors and Marines who were deployed aboard the ships of the USS Iwo Jima Amphibious Ready Group.

The deployment included training and real-world operations in Iraq and Liberia.

Day's unit is an expeditionary intervention force with the ability to rapidly organize for combat operations in virtually any environment. MEUs are composed of more than 2,000 personnel and are divided into an infantry battalion, aircraft squadron, support group and command element. With this combination, Day's unit supplies and sustains itself for either quick mission accomplishment or clearing the way for follow-on forces.

'Tis the Season of Denial

"All my joints are killing me."

I don't get a break from this pain, not even at night. I toss and turn with pain until I finally drift off into a bit of sleep. But the pain wakes me up after a few hours and keeps me awake."

I responded to my friend: "Arthritis and gout, which are brought on by excessive uric acid, are triggered almost exclusively by the consumption of animal products. The biggest offenders are red meat, pork and shellfish."

There was a deathly silence. At length, I asked whether she consumed red meat, pork and shellfish.

"If you do not consume those animal products which turn into uric acid, you will be free of arthritis and gout."

"Oh, I don't eat pork!" she retorted defensively and emphatically. "All I'm going to cook for Christmas is perhaps some mirlitons (vegetable pear or chayote) stuffed with a bit of ham in them."

"Ham? And you don't eat pork? Are you sure that is what you mean? And what about your silence concerning red meat?"

Immediately crawling, she realized her partial state of denial. "Well, I guess I will just cook the mirlitons down with onions and bell peppers."

At this time of the year, one can almost hear the melody supporting the lyrics: "'Tis the season of denial, fa la la la la la la la la."

If it were not so very serious, this would simply be a humorous, facetious interlude in our daily living. Alas, the penalty of denial is literally as serious as a heart attack, a stroke, hypertension, diabetes, arthritis and gout.

Just days ago, one of our priests in his mid forties - and that is young - was going through his evening exercise regimen when his vascular system burst into a massive, fatal heart attack. Healthwise, he had taken care of each item except checking out whether there were any blockages leading to his heart.

When one looks hale and hearty to the naked eye, it is so easy to be in denial about the mere possibility that some unseen vital part of us may be in potentially deep trouble. Our tendency is to inquire only when we hurt.

Especially when a male has passed the age of 40, it is imperative to have a complete physical checkup, with particular emphasis on the colon, prostate, heart, vascular system, pressure and sugar level.

Again, an object lesson in this necessity for a total physical checkup was painfully demonstrated a handful of years ago when a bishop also in his mid forties was diagnosed with colon cancer. Sadly, he had no colon tests run until he was driven to the doctor by pain. That, of course, was by far too late.

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

A devotee of physical fitness, the young bishop exercised daily, working out and pumping iron several times a week. Although great of itself, exercise is to no avail if we consume dangerous foods such as red meat, and if our basic bodily organs and functions are not monitored.

Once the age of 40 descends on a male, and more especially a black male, that is the automatic signal that he needs a colonoscopy, prostate tests, a thorough heart and vascular checkup, and a total battery of blood tests.

Naturally, pain is a sure messenger of physical problems, but its presence is usually felt too late in the game to do us much good. By the time we are racked by pain, some malignant monster such as cancer is destroying us.

So, why don't most of us take care of having various health checkups done in timely fashion? In a word, denial. 'Tis the season of denial. As obese, diseased, hobbled people attack food with abandon, we see gross denial.

Most people routinely deny hard evidence that most cancers occur almost exclusively where red meat and other heavy meats are frequently consumed.

It is well known that very poor nations, which have a coarse diet with little meat, have hardly even heard of cancer of the colon, prostate and breasts.

Why are most people in denial about such observable realities? Because our food culture is so ingrained, vital and important to us that, even faced with terminal illnesses, we cannot bring ourselves to admit that some foods are lethal. All the events of our lives are structured around foods and drinks.

After great reluctance and many rationalizations, we have just recently escaped our denial of the toxicity of nicotine. Somehow, cigarettes worked their way into our culture via chic smokers in movies and commercials.

Now, following the lead of the Surgeon General, we recognize nicotine as the primary cause of lung cancer, and a contributing cause of heart disease. Still, despite these dire consequences, many willing addicts continue to puff.

As serious and as basic as our denial is of the inseparable connection of animal cholesterol and certain diseases, our madness does not stop there.

We routinely live in denial of Christmas' real meaning: one born to die for us.

No matter how often we experience reverses and failures of every kind, no matter how much sickness and death we encounter, we can and will rise above seasonal disorders by eschewing all denial and affirming our Messiah.

Scripture Says...

By Ed Young

The Kingdom of God

What is the kingdom of God?

Where is the kingdom of God?

Where is the kingdom of Heaven?

St. Luke writes: And when He was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come; He answered them and said The kingdom of God cometh not with observation. Neither shall they say, Lo here! or Lo there! For, behold the kingdom of God is, in the midst of you. Luke 17: 20 & 21.

The king of glory was standing there among them saying my kingdom is of a spiritual content, "in the hearts of men."

Paul writing to the church at Rome, "For the kingdom of God is not food and drink, but righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Spirit." Romans 14:7.

The kingdom of God is not a kingdom in comparison to the kingdoms of this world.

Where is the kingdom of Heaven? There are three heavens. The first heaven is what we are familiar with, the stars and planets, we know of and see.

The second heaven is where Satan and the fallen angels abide.

The third heaven is when God His angels and the redeemed are.

Paul writing to the church at Corinth: "I knew a man in Christ about fourteen years ago, whether in the body, I cannot tell, God knows; such as one caught up to the third heaven." II Cor. 12:3 Paul says, when he went there, he saw and heard unspeakable words, which is not lawful for a man to utter. He was overwhelmed what he heard and saw. He could not compare, or examine, any similarities to this world.

Someday, many will see the third heaven, and some won't. Jesus says; I will take you there if you put your hand in mine. He's reaching out for your hand, right now! We're foolish if we wave Him off.

The "Word" for the Week
A six point peace plan

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

As a boy I remember being asked to give thanks before our family Christmas meal. I vividly remember praying that God would reveal to us the real meaning of the Christmas holiday.

I was not a Christian at that time. It was several years later, after I graduated from college, that I really understood Christmas. God finally answered my prayer. I found that Christ came into the world because people like me are sinners.

That's right, I am a sinner! I really knew that. I was unhappy with myself and with life. I knew my life style was not the way to happiness. Why? Because there was a gnawing lack of peace within my heart. I was not at peace within myself. But all that changed.

A concerned Christian explained to me how Christ brings personal peace. You see, Christ heals that inner lack of peace by forgiving sins. Christ cleanses the heart from the feelings of guilt and He gives new direction and meaning to life. I can tell you for sure, Christ did that for me.

The thing is, the Bible tells us that Christ is the "Prince of Peace" (Isaiah 9:6). When Christ entered the world in human form as a babe in a manger, the angels sang, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men" . . . (Luke 2:14).

The point is, if you want real peace, you need to come to the Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ. You need to trust Him for the forgiveness of your sins. You need to begin a new life by following Him. There is no real peace without Jesus Christ.

Hancock 4-H ...by the book

Hancock County 4-H members participated in a Parliamentary Procedure Class sponsored by the Mississippi State Extension Area Leadership Development Agent, Marilyn Bailey, at the Mississippi State University Extension District Office in Hattiesburg, MS. Mr. Harvey Gordon, 4-H Youth Development Instructor from the 4-H office in Starkville, MS, conducted the class.

The purpose of the class was to acquaint the members with parliamentary rules that enable an organization to do the things it was organized to do; thus enabling the group to make a plan of action in an efficient manner without confusion. They learn that by following these rules order can be maintained which hastens the business portion of the meeting. By applying parliamentary rules, the will of the majority is carried out and the rights and privileges of the minority are assured. Participation in the Parliamentary Procedure Class promotes poise and confidence. Each member and officer will be able to perform his or her duties in a timely and orderly way. It is hoped that these 4-H members will take back to their clubs the knowledge and experience that will make their club meetings more productive.

Hancock JROTC formal inspection

Each year the Hancock High School junior ROTC Battalion, under the command of Chief Warrant Officer 2 James Lewis and Sergeant Major Larry Ladner, undergoes an Informal Inspection to determine whether the Battalion receives an Honor

Unit with Distinction rating. Every third year the inspections are different - as was this year's. During the 2003-2004 inspection, representatives of the 8th Brigade visited the Battalion to survey and inspect every aspect of the Hawk JROTC unit including staff operations and briefings, companies, general knowledge, drill performance, and color guard. Out of a possible 600 points, the Hawk Battalion succeeded in retaining its Honor Unit with Distinction rating by achieving a score of 576 in the combined areas.

The Sea Coast Echo

Hancock's Local Newspaper since 1892

Advertising is an investment in the success of your business. Every business has some kind of competition, either within the town, nearby city or from mail order firms. Your potential customers are being courted by your competitors. If you do not invite those customers to do business with you, they are likely to forget you and buy elsewhere. It is not uncommon for consumers to switch their trading from one store to another. Advertising helps to keep old customers and equally as important, make new ones.

Our community is constantly growing which means that potential customers are moving into the market area all the time. Advertising gives these newcomers a reason to visit your store.

Most businesses budget for their advertising expenses just as they do for other necessities such as rent, phones, etc. Smart business people realize that advertising is imperative to keep their business growing.

Another reason to advertise is that advertising is news! You profit by telling our readers what is new in your store. Through advertising, you can let a wide audience know the product lines you carry, the quality of your merchandise, the completeness of your service and the character of your store.

If you have something to sell, then you have something to advertise. When you have nothing to advertise, you are out of business. Advertising is designed to build your business and works best when it is repeated regularly. Consistent advertising pays off!

Now that you know some of the reasons to advertise, you're probably wondering how you can advertise most effectively. Surveys show that ads in local newspapers have more impact than in any other medium. The Sea Coast Echo goes into the majority of the homes in Hancock County. The Sea Coast Echo is full of interesting reading, it is a part of our community. People like to read about people and The Sea Coast Echo is full of pictures and stories about local people. The most important reason to advertise in The Sea Coast Echo is that our readers are your customers.

If you're looking for the best advertising value for your money, then you should contact the advertising department at The Sea Coast Echo. One of our advertising representatives will be happy to discuss the many advertising options offered by The Sea Coast Echo. For more information you may call 467-5474, Monday through Friday 8am to 5pm, or stop by our office at 124 Court Street, Bay St. Louis.

Since 1892, The Sea Coast Echo is proud to be a part of your community Legendary singer/dancer/guitarist Charo comes to Bay St. Louis Dec. 12-14.

Charo offers a 'Cuchi, Cuchi' Christmas at Casino Magic

The original "Cuchi-Cuchi" girl, Charo brings her "Cuchi Cuchi Christmas" variety show to Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday and Saturday December 12 and 13 at 9 p.m. and Sunday December 14 at 6 p.m. Tickets are $14.95, $19.95 and $24.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

Only a few multi-talented people are recognized with just one name and bring a smile to your face when that name is mentioned.

Charo is one of those few. Charo is a singer, dancer, comedian and also a classically trained guitarist who has been playing since the age of nine.

Her most recent albums include, "Guitar Passion," showing off her guitar skills and "Gusto," her first dance album since the disco era.

She is best known for her appearances on the television shows "Chico and the Man," "The Love Boat," "Laugh In," "The Carol Burnett Show," "The Late Show" and "The Tonight Show." Lately she has been headlining in Vegas and touring the world with her variety shows.

Don't miss Charo's Cuchi Cuchi Christmas Show at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis December 12, 13 and 14! Must be 21 to attend.

Biloxi City Ballet Company offers 'Lights of Christmas'

Biloxi City Ballet is a non-profit organization. Valeri Salnikov is a Russian born dancer, and Artistic Director of the Ballet Company. His first performance is entitled "Lights of Christmas", to be held Dec. 12, at the Mary C. O'keefe Theatre, Ocean Springs. There will be two free performances for schools and nursing homes, 8:30 a.m. and 10 a.m. There are still spaces open for the 10 a.m. show. The evening show will start at 7 p.m. and tickets are $12 per person. Tickets can be purchased at Gulf Coast School of Performing Arts or the Mary C. O'keefe Theatre. For tickets or more information please call 228-385-9797.

Nevilles coming to Magic

The Neville Brothers will bring their unique style of music to the stage at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday and Saturday December 26 & 27 at 9 p.m. Tickets are $19.95, $24.95 & $29.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

With four powerfully unique personalities, the Neville Brothers thrive on an explosive fusion of diversity and unity. The collective of talented brothers is world-famous for its embodiment of the New Orleans sound. Aaron, Art, Charles and Cyril Neville have expanded the horizons of New Orleans R&B while honoring the music's roots and tradition. Drawing on the vast resources and multiple styles of African-American music, The Neville Brothers have combined R&B, jazz, reggae, and elements of rock and Zydeco with a harmony-based funk groove all their own.

The careers of Art and Aaron Neville began in the early 50's around the street corners, on the porches and at house parties in the notorious Calliope Projects. Energetic, but with little else to do, it was only natural for them to pick up the rhythms and moods of the city they were so much a part of. Aaron is perhaps the best known of the brothers. His hits include "Tell It Like It Is" in 1966 and his duets in the 80's with Linda Ronstadt on "All My Life" and "Don't Know Much." Art first came to note well before Elvis, having recorded "Mardi Gras Mambo" with the Hawkettes in 1954. "Mardi Gras Mambo" continues to get heavy airplay and respectable sales during the local Mardi Gras festivities.

After the four put together careers separately and not having played together for eight years, the brothers united to help record the universally acclaimed "The Wild Tchoupitoulas" a year after their mother's death in 1975. They credit their uncle with getting them to join forces. "He told us that our mother and father had always wanted to see us work together as a band," Charles recalls. "He knew that if we got together as a family, it would happen." The brothers became a best-loved local attraction and in 1988, they won a Grammy with "Yellow Moon." Then in the 1990's, "Brother's Keeper" cemented their star status.

They have sold millions of record worldwide and have gold and platinum records in six different countries. They have been the featured television performers on "Good Morning America," "Today," "Oprah," "Saturday Night Live," "Letterman" and "The Tonight Show."

Checking in with Kevin Weisman

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Almost any Sunday night on ABC, "Alias" fans can be found on the edge of their seats watching lovably goofy gadget-guru Marshall Flinkman frantically tap away at his computer to get agent Bristow (Jennifer Garner) out of another tough spot.

But what seems excruciatingly tense isn't really, says Kevin Weisman, who plays Marshall.

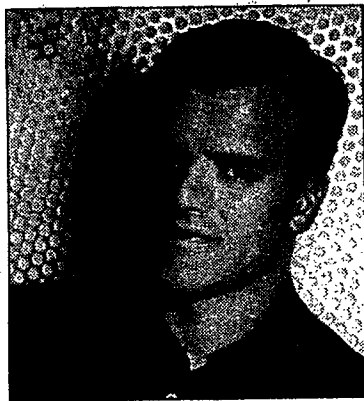

"We shoot those scenes before they create the special effects that show what we're supposedly looking at," he laughs. "We're basically looking at a blue screen and trying to seem very intense - and I'm trying to be a little funny, maybe - but you don't want to go completely over the top. It's tricky sometimes."

That Weisman pulls it off can be attributed in large part to his solid grounding in the theater. He may have gotten his early inspiration from playing the Professor in a grade-school stage piece adapted from "Gilligan's Island," but Weisman later worked hard at his craft. He earned a degree from UCLA, and took additional classes at Broadway's Circle in the Square.

"Young people often ask me, 'What should I do to become an actor?'" and I say, 'Work, study hard, do everything you can to prepare yourself for that break, because it may not come more than once,' he says.

At present, he's working on "The Terminal," a Steven Spielberg drama in which he co-stars with Tom Hanks.

"Steven is a huge 'Alias' fan, which blew me away, and he knew Jennifer from 'Catch Me If You Can.' He made me feel very comfortable. He's amazing. I think somehow he has managed to hang on to that childhood passion to make movies, and it shows," he says.

Born: Dec. 29, 1970, in Los Angeles.

Education: a bachelor's from UCLA's prestigious School of Theatre/Film/Television.

Why training is important: "I did a show once with a young actress who could not walk and talk at the same time. Literally. If she had a line, she had to stop moving."

Multi-tasking: In addition to his TV and movie work, Weisman is a founding member of Los Angeles' Buffalo Nights Theatre Company. He also plays drums in a band called Trainwreck.

TV guest appearances: "Player$"; "Charmed"; "First Years"; "Buffy the Vampire Slayer"; "Gideon's Crossing"; "Felicity"; "Roswell"; "The X-Files"; "JAG."

Featured Girls use good to save holiday

'Twas the month before Christmas, when all through the channels
Specials were airing, aimed at kids in their flannels.

Santa, reindeer and the magic of the season

Give viewers a break from the mall - with good reason.

Cartoon Network's "Powerpuff Girls: 'Twas the Fight Before Christmas" Friday, Dec. 12.

Offers funny diversions for grandparents, parents, children, yes, even an elf.

Our heroines are the pie-eyed trio of Buttercup, Blossom and Bubbles.

Who naturally save the day, but not before enduring major troubles.

The villain in this cartoon is a brat named Princess Morbucks.

Whose sole unmet wish is to be a Powerpuff Girl - shucks!

Spoiled to her marrow, she travels to the North Pole.

With thoughts of computer hacking poisoning her soul.

She discovers the list of nice and naughty.

And as a rotten kid who defines naughty.

She switches the list of the good with the bad.

Figuring no one will know they've been had.

Poor Santa, depicted here as an ugly creature.

(Our lone complaint in an otherwise fine feature)

Needs the Powerpuff Girls' cool super-powers.

To deliver the presents in scant hours.

Racing around the globe so no good child awakes empty-handed.

They return exhausted to their bed, having upheld the standard.

Good does indeed triumph and evil is thwarted.

At this time of year when precious time is courted.

Judge this a fine way to pass an hour.

For at the end, no one could be dour.

As the girls' creator, Professor Utonium, in his coat of white.

Says to his blond, redhead and brunette sweet children - and to all a good night.

HBO's 'Angels in America' is a triumph

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Ask Meryl Streep what "Angels in America" is about and you'll get a very concise answer: It's about everything. "The best things are, aren't they?" says the two-time Oscar winner, who stars in HBO's stunning new adaptation of Tony Kushner's epic, Pulitzer and Tony Award-winning stage drama, which premieres in two parts on successive Sundays, Dec. 7 and 14.

"Certainly, it's a specific story, about a loosely related bunch of people whose lives impact on each other, although they are from very disparate backgrounds," Streep says. "What really shocked me is how urgent and relevant to today this material still seems, even though it was written more than 10 years ago and is set even earlier."

"Millennium Approaches," as the opening half of Kushner's masterwork is called, is set in mid-1980s Manhattan, where two men are experiencing increasingly serious AIDS symptoms.

The first, gay New Yorker Prior Walter (Justin Kirk, "Love! Valour! Compassion!"), is devastated when his lover, Louis Ironson (Ben Shenkman), cracks under the pressure of caring for a seriously ill companion and deserts Prior in favor of a closeted law clerk, Joe Pitt (Patrick Wilson).

For his part, Joe has bailed on his own emotionally unstable wife, Harper (Mary-Louise Parker, "The West Wing"), and cast his lot with the other man battling AIDS: corrupt attorney Roy Cohn (Al Pacino). Streep plays Joe's Mormon mother, Hannah.

"Millennium Approaches" builds tautly to a startling climax in which an angel (Emma Thompson) descends from heaven to announce that the celestial hosts have declared stricken Prior to be a prophet.

"Perestroika" concludes the story on Dec. 14.

"When I first saw ('Angels') onstage several years ago, I thought, 'This is incredible, the way he has captured the urgency of this moment so vividly,' but I wondered what the shelf life of the piece would be, because it seemed so very much of its own time," says Streep, who also plays two other characters - an elderly male rabbi and Cohn's courtroom nemesis Ethel Rosenberg - in the HBO movie. "But of course now we are dealing with repercussions of that time today."

"Beyond that, though, it just feels timeless. All Tony wants to do is tell the truth, and he does it in a very fantastical way."

"'Angels' is about so many things, many of them political, but it isn't just a political work," concurs Kirk, who may be unfamiliar to many viewers but whose plucky Prior firmly anchors the drama. "It's one of those pieces that just doesn't come along very often. This play exists in its own world."

Written during the late 1980s out of Kushner's frustration at what he perceived to be a profound governmental indifference to the escalating AIDS crisis in the gay community, the two parts of "Angels in America" won a variety of prestigious theater awards during Broadway runs in 1993 and '94.

Previous attempts to adapt "Angels" to film came to naught, until director Mike Nichols decided to embrace the very theatricality of the play. Thus, the HBO movie follows its own internal logic, mixing scenes of gritty drama with others of hallucinatory excess and leavening often grim subject matter with flashes of unexpected comedy.

Oscar winner Meryl Streep and Justin Kirk star in "Angels in America," an HBO adaptation of Tony Kushner's epic play debuting Sunday.

"In the most horrific scenes, Tony writes with such rhythm and exuberance that there is some perverse humor you find in very unexpected places," Streep says. "This isn't the kind of thing where you simply watch to see what 'happens,' because so much is going on on so many levels."

"We don't see that much on TV. We've constructed all these silly little rules for ourselves instead of exploring the real potential of this medium, so it has become more constrictive instead of more expansive."

The superb cast performs as a seamless ensemble because each actor is made to feel that his character's story is absolutely crucial to the impact of the piece as a whole, Streep adds.

Campbell takes time out for labor of love

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q ■ What is Neve Campbell these days? She seems to have disappeared in the midst of a blossoming career. -J.A., Flagstaff, Ariz.

A ■ Not exactly. Campbell stepped away from the spotlight for several months to produce a small film called "The Company," in which the 30-year-old actress, a former member of the National Ballet of Canada, plays a gifted but troubled ballerina.

The project was a labor of love for Campbell, who also co-wrote the story with screenwriter Barbara Turner ("Pollock") and persuaded screen veteran Robert Altman ("Gosford Park") to direct. The film, which co-stars James Franco ("James Dean") and goes into wider release at Christmas, has received good early notices.

Q ■ What happened to the actor who played Bob on "Becker"? -Andrew Huck, McHenry, Ill.

Neve Campbell

A ■ A "Becker" publicist reports that actor Saverio Guerra, who played Bob, decided to leave the series to pursue film roles, so his character was written out.

He might have been wise to jump ship. CBS ordered only 13 episodes of "Becker" this season, after which the show will at least temporarily disappear. The network insists the Ted Danson sitcom remains a contender for a spot in next fall's lineup.

Q ■ What was the name of the 1980s TV movie about a group of high-school students struggling with a friend's suicide? It starred Keanu Reeves. -P.C.C. via e-mail.

A ■ Reeves gave one of his best-ever performances as Chris Townsend, a teenager left reeling by the inexplicable suicide of his best friend, in "Permanent Record," an unusually powerful 1988 TV movie that also starred Jennifer Rubin, Barry Corbin and Kathy Baker. It's available on VHS from retailers such as Amazon.com.

'Battlestar Galactica' flies again on Sci-Fi Channel

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Seldom in TV history have fans been so passionate about so little for so long. "Battlestar Galactica" will just not fade away.

On Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 8 and 9, Sci-Fi Channel reimagines the 1970s TV series with a four-hour miniseries that also serves as a backdoor pilot. It may be a fresh beginning for "Galactica," but it's only the latest chapter in an ongoing saga.

In October, fans gathered at the Sheraton Universal Hotel in Los Angeles to celebrate "Galacticon 2003," the 25th anniversary of the 1978 ABC space opera, which lasted just one season (few fans count its wretched sequel, "Galactica 1980").

The first "Battlestar Galactica" - which launched with great fanfare and splashy special effects - starred Lorne Greene as Adama, the leader of human refugees fleeing aboard a ragtag fleet in search of a mythical Earth after the cybernetic Cylons destroyed their 12 space colonies.

Directed by Michael Rymer, the new version stars Edward James Olmos as Commander Adama; with Jamie Bamber as his son, the pilot Apollo; Katee Sackhoff as the pilot Starbuck; and Mary McDonnell as the newly appointed president of the colonies.

On Friday night at the convention, the faithful (who have come from as far away as Kuwait and the Pacific island of New Caledonia) gather to see a presentation by Ronald D. Moore ("Roswell," "Carnivale"), writer of the new miniseries.

They've been given popcorn to crunch during his talk (but not to throw, they're told). Also on hand are original cast members, including Terry Carter (Col. Tigh) and Richard Hatch (Apollo), a longtime champion of the show who tried to launch his own revival in 1999.

After seeing clips, the question-and-answer session begins, and the tone, though polite, is hostile to Moore's reinvention of the "Galactica" mythos. But when pointedly asked if he would yield to fans' wishes and change things if the miniseries becomes a series, Moore simply says, "No."

"There are definitely some pockets of people who are never going to like this," Moore says, away from the fans.

But it's not for lack of effort. Moore has posted on message boards, spoken to the press and shown up in person to preach the new "Galactica" gospel. But many likely viewers - including the desirable 12-24 and 18-34 demographics - have probably never seen the original.

After its one-year run, "Galactica" mostly vanished from the airwaves, until it reappeared in recent years in reruns on Sci-Fi. Until then, it was largely the possession of the fans and Hatch, who formed a strong bond.

For a while after the turn of the new century, it looked as though Bryan Singer and Tom DeSanto (also seen wandering through the crowd at the convention) would mount a new TV version of "Galactica," a continuation (as was Hatch's concept) of the original series.

But when "X-Men" became a huge hit, director Singer and his story co-creator DeSanto had to go off and make the sequel, so their "Galactica" was forced off the table. Universal Studios, which owned the concept, then called on Moore to give it another go, this time for Sci-Fi.

Moore sat down to view the original movie-length pilot. "I watched this story of a civilization being wiped out," he recalls, "and I realized I was looking at it through very different eyes after 9/11."

"Suddenly, I could tell a story about us. What does it do to you to wake up one morning and everything you thought was safe in your world is wiped out? Some of us react badly. Some of us react nobly. We may rally 'round the flag together, for a moment. Then it becomes something else, because we're still human beings."

"You're trying to make something great," says David Eick, executive producer of the miniseries. "You're trying to not make what people expect you to do. There's the issue of the genre; there's the issue of the title; there's the issue of the show we wanted to do."

"It was quite a tightrope walk for everybody. The most surprising thing was how effortless it seemed. Everybody intuitively understood that we're making something called 'Battlestar Galactica,' and it is a severe departure from the thing that used to be called 'Battlestar Galactica.'"

In front of assembled TV critics in July, Olmos (a casting choice that made Singer say, "I'm so jealous!"), cautioned fans of the original to tune out the new version, to cling instead to the thing they love.

"Don't hurt yourself," he says. "This has changed a lot. It's not better; it's not worse. It's not a continuation of the story."

The miniseries "Battlestar Galactica," debuting Monday and Tuesday on Sci-Fi Channel, stars Katee Sackhoff, Jamie Bamber, Grace Park and Edward James Olmos (clockwise from top left).

Moore's new version injects a lot more sex into "Galactica," along with gender-switching the character of Starbuck. Katee Sackhoff takes over from Dirk Benedict, while still retaining Starbuck's cigar-chomping, poker-playing swagger.

"I'm addicted to the original now," Sackhoff says. "All we did one day was sit on the couch and watch it (on DVD) and eat a whole box of cereal. It was absolutely amazing."

"Some of the fans reamed me out that I hadn't watched it, and I said, 'I watched it!' Whatever. You're going to have the diehard fans that don't want it reimagined."

Moore has also rethought the Cylons, turning them from mysterious metallic foes into humanity's own creation, some of which can pass among us. But ultimately, it's the people he cares about most.

Another Charlie Brown Christmas comes to ABC

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

It's not unusual to see the Peanuts gang celebrating Christmas, but this year, they're spreading extra cheer.

Not only are Charles M. Schulz's beloved characters on view in the classic cartoon "A Charlie Brown Christmas" - which has its second ABC airing of the season Saturday, Dec. 13 - they're also starring in a new holiday special. "I Want a Dog for Christmas, Charlie Brown!" debuts Tuesday, Dec. 9, on ABC.

ReRun, the younger brother of Lucy and Linus, leans on independent-minded beagle Snoopy to supply yuletide fun. Snoopy has other ideas, so he persuades his brother Spike to visit - and hopefully to entertain ReRun - but Christmas ends up much differently than any of them anticipated.

Producer-director Bill Melendez has been pivotal to the "Peanuts" specials since they originated with "A Charlie Brown Christmas" in 1965, and he allows that devising a follow-up to that much-cherished program was no easy task. "It misses the touch of the old master," Melendez says of the late Schulz. "He was a writer and I was just an illustrator, so it's a different thing to be put in his position."

Schulz died in 2000, and Melendez missed his presence as "I Want a Dog for Christmas, Charlie Brown!" went through its earliest stages. "He was always prone to start out with an original idea and not lean on the old scripts," Melendez says. "Since his death, we've been forced to read those scripts and try to get out of them some kind of a story."

"I'm pretty well acquainted with what the characters can and can't do, so that part is OK," Melendez adds. "It's the business (of writing a new special) that bothers me. We don't dare hire an outside writer, because the (Schulz) family doesn't like that idea, so we have to go along with what we have and what we remember."

While he realizes watching "A Charlie Brown Christmas" is a seasonal tradition in countless households, Melendez has mixed feelings about it returning - twice, no less - when there's also a new "Peanuts" Christmas special. "That's dangerous," he concedes, "because people can compare the two. I hope that we stayed on the mark and made the new one acceptable."

"I dread the time when fans might say, 'Wait a minute! This isn't the 'Peanuts' we know!' Many of the jokes come right out of the comic strip, and if you recognize those, you feel comfortable. We're trying to make the newer shows as true to the original spirit of 'Peanuts' as we can."

Melendez has another enduring "Peanuts" role: He's also the voice of Snoopy. "That part of the job is great," he says. "Back in the '60s, I started casting for actors with whimsical voices to suit the part of Snoopy. I found some I thought were great, but Schulz rejected them all. We ran out of time, so I started filling in the voice temporarily. Schulz heard it and said, 'Where'd you get that voice?' I said, 'That's me.' He said, 'OK. That's acceptable.' I had to hold on to my chair."

The "Peanuts" specials moved two years ago from CBS to ABC, which has encouraged new ones, including a baseball-themed show that aired in August. The Christmas stories are likely to hold at two, but others are in the works. "It's flattering when people get curious about our shows," Melendez maintains. "After all, we're just animators - but we enjoy it. We know we'll always have an audience, so that helps us to be bold and aggressive."

Charlie Brown, ReRun and Snoopy (from left) celebrate the holiday season anew in "I Want a Dog for Christmas, Charlie Brown!" a new, animated "Peanuts" special about little ReRun's determined quest for yuletide fun and joy, airing Tuesday on ABC.

They were arguably two of the most successful sports franchises of the 1970s, inspiring love, hate and envy among fans and contemporaries alike.

They also inhabited the same city and stadium, citizens of which they treated to stylish, thrilling play and world championships.

They were the Oakland A's and Raiders, and their successes then are the topic of the new HBO Sports documentary "Rebels of Oakland: The A's, the Raiders, the '70s," premiering Wednesday, Dec. 10.

Augmented by vintage clips as well as interviews with the men who lived it, the film sets the teams' triumphs against the backdrop of a turbulent time in the history of Oakland, Calif., one that followed the rise of the Black Panthers and antiwar demonstrations in San Francisco and at nearby University of California-Berkeley.

During that era, the A's of Reggie Jackson, Sal Bando and Rollie Fingers wore garish green-and-gold uniforms and won three championships from 1972 to 1974, while much of the time fighting with one another and their meddlesome owner, Charles O. Finley.

The Raiders, on the other hand, got along perhaps a little too well, turning training camp into an annual six-week party. Led by Ken Stabler, Ben Davidson and Phil Villapiano, the silver and black were likewise one of their sport's best teams, challenging for the NFL title yearly and winning the Super Bowl in 1977.

These men (except for Finley, who died in 1996) are among the many appearing in the documentary, along with rapper M.C. Hammer, a 13-year-old executive vice president under Finley at the time, and Tom Hanks, then a vendor at Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum.

Hanks' participation may come as a surprise given the demands he already has on his time, but co-executive producer Ross Greenburg discovered that the subject matter was too tempting for the Oscar-winning actor to pass up. "I find that if you kind of tug at people's heartstrings, you can get them to do interviews that others can't," Greenburg says. "This was an important, happy time in his life, and he wanted to sit down and relive his memories. He's always asked about his movies; he's rarely asked about his A's and Raiders, and he was very willing to sit down for an hour and spill his guts."

So were the Raiders, many of whom fondly recalled their triumphs on the field and some of the wild times off it. One was linebacker Villapiano, who admits he would often mislead his wife about the goings-on at training camp. "He would tell his wife, rolling his eyes, that he had to go up to Santa Rosa (Calif.) to training camp and knowing that once he got there, it was the greatest three or four weeks of his life," Greenburg says. "I mean, that was the irony. I once visited that pre-season training camp in Santa Rosa in, like, 1979 I believe. And (defensive end-turned-actor John) Matuszak was still there. And that was crazy up there. I mean, there's no NFL player in history that enjoyed going to training camp, but those guys went up there and it was like one big party for a month. They loved it."

Another segment revolves around the A's victory in the 1973 World Series, which was sullied by Finley's ugly firing of Mike Andrews after the reserve infielder made two critical errors in a Game 2 loss to the New York Mets. The incident incensed the A's players and drew the ire of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who several days later ordered Andrews' reinstatement.

In a news clip of the locker-room celebration following the series, Finley is seen congratulating Jackson, who is polite, nothing more, in response. Jackson then does a slow, unblinking turn to the reporter interviewing him, as if to say "Do you believe that?" His expression is priceless.

"Have you ever seen a scene where a player has demeaned an owner like that?" Greenburg says. "It was classic. And what was even more interesting about it was he turned so that Finley, until the day he died, probably had no idea that Reggie felt that way about him."

The film also touches on Hammer's employment with the A's as an executive, but as Greenburg notes, "They used that term loosely. It would be like my 15-year-old son being an assistant GM. I mean, he was just a kid, but he was Charlie's kid, and he stuck him in that locker room to spy."

"St. Louis Rams at Cleveland Browns" Monday, Dec. 8 (ABC, 9 p.m. ET): Tonight's game between the Rams and Browns marks the end of Week 14, which means the playoffs are right around the corner. At least they should be for the Rams, who were recently tied with Seattle for control of the NFC West and were banking on a rested Marshall Faulk to carry them down the stretch. With pedestrian quarterback Kelly Holcomb at the helm, the Browns don't score much, relying instead on their highly rated defense to make plays.

"College Basketball" Wednesday, Dec. 10 (ESPN, 7 p.m. ET): A retooled Maryland squad, just two years removed from a national championship, travel to Florida to take on the preseason top-10 ranked Gators. Four Terp sophomores should receive plenty of playing time, including point guard John Gilchrist, who takes over from NBA draftee Steve Blake. The Gators' goal to be more physical this season should be aided by the stronger bodies of versatile forwards David Lee and Christian Dreier.

"2003 Heisman Trophy Presentation" Saturday, Dec. 13 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): The nation's top college football player is announced during a live, two-hour extravaganza from the Yale Club in New York. Three senior quarterbacks - Oklahoma's Jason White, Mississippi's Eli Manning and North Carolina State's Philip Rivers - were among the favorites as the season headed into the home stretch. Pittsburgh wide receiver Larry Fitzgerald also is in the running, although the sophomore's age may work against him.

This 1997 adaptation of Truman Capote's touching holiday story features Patty Duke as the eccentric cousin who shares a special Christmas tradition with her young relative (Eric Lloyd, "The Santa Clause"). But time is passing, and while these two oddball friends don't know it, this may well be their last Christmas together. The story first was dramatized 30 years earlier, with Geraldine Page in the role played here by Duke.

After a young couple is killed in a car accident and sent to the morgue, their spirits appeal to Tru (Eliza Dushku) to go back a day and prevent the tragedy in the new episode "Star Crossed." She returns to high school, posing as a student, to learn the circumstances that preceded the accident. Kaj-Erik Eriksen ("The Commish") guest stars.

Grandma Got Run Over by a Reindeer

A familiar holiday tune — and one that's more off-color than most — is translated into an animated show as this special sets visuals to the Elmo and Patsy song. A youngster has his suspicions about why his grandmother is missing on Christmas Eve. His quest to find her involves his not-as-pure-minded cousin (voice of Michele Lee, "Knots Landing").

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

Terrorism is a troubling possibility when a car bomb explodes at a hotel on the famed Las Vegas Strip in the new episode "Grissom Versus the Volcano." At another hotel, Warrick and Sara (Gary Dourdan, Jorja Fox) try to determine the reason why the wife of an influential musician (guest star Randy J. Goodwin) died in a bathtub.

8:59 p.m. on 6-NBC

ER

Dr. Carter (Noah Wyle) spends Christmas Eve in the Congo in the new episode "Makemba." He argues with, then falls for, an AIDS worker (guest star Thandie Newton, "Mission: Impossible 2") who has her own ideas about utilizing the limited resources of a medical clinic. Carter's French peers turn on him because of his Americanism, but he resolves to bring native youngsters some holiday cheer.

Saturday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Movie: It's a Wonderful Life

James Stewart stars in director Frank Capra's much-beloved 1946 holiday classic as George Bailey, a banker who believes he is a failure. On Christmas Eve, he decides to end his life — but is stopped by novice angel Clarence (Henry Travers), who shows him how many people he has touched. Far from a box-office smash when it was first released, the movie also stars Donna Reed and Lionel Barrymore.

7 p.m. on AMC

Movie: Ghost

Whoopi Goldberg won an Academy Award for her performance in this 1990 fantasy-romance. A storefront medium (Goldberg) is convinced by the spirit of a murdered man (Patrick Swayze) to give messages to the distraught fiancée (Demi Moore) he left behind, whose life is also in danger. The film features the classic Righteous Brothers version of the song "Unchained Melody."

7 p.m. on ESPN

2003 Heisman Trophy Presentation

The nation's top college football player is announced during a live, two-hour extravaganza from the Yale Club in New York. Three senior quarterbacks — Oklahoma's Jason White, Mississippi's Eli Manning and North Carolina State's Philip Rivers — were among the favorites as the season headed into the home stretch. Pittsburgh wide receiver Larry Fitzgerald also is in the running, although the sophomore's age may work against him.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Two Weeks Notice

Fans of Sandra Bullock and/or Hugh Grant should like their teaming in this light but enjoyable 2002 comedy produced by Bullock. She plays the latest lawyer hired by a womanizing real-estate tycoon (Grant), and try as she does to resist his charms, she can't help herself. She ends up quitting, which doesn't necessarily mean the end of their association. Robert Klein and Dana Ivey play Bullock's parents; Alicia Witt also co-stars.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: I'll Be Home for Christmas

The title of this 1998 Disney comedy indicates where the college student played by Jonathan Taylor Thomas ("Home Improvement") hopes he'll be, anyway. He'll get a flashy car from his father if he makes it home in time for the holiday. Campus pranksters have something else in mind for him, and he ends up stranded far from where the home fires are burning. Jessica Biel ("7th Heaven") co-stars as his girlfriend.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Hack

Olshansky's (David Morse) home phone number is found written on the hand of a rape-murder victim in the new episode "Dial 'O' for Murder." Realizing he had talked to the woman, who was worried about her boyfriend, Olshansky launches an investigation — while he's being investigated himself by Marcellus (Andre Braugher). Jon Seda ("Homicide: Life on the Street") guest stars.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

The young recipient (guest star M. Neko Parham) of Ella's heart may be connected to a robbery, and a resulting death, in the new episode "Hollow Spaces." During the crime, a gas pump explodes and kills a bystander, making Manion (Craig T. Nelson) determined to identify and apprehend the culprit. Nancy and her mother (Elizabeth Marvel, guest star Lee Garlington) are victimized by would-be carjackers.

9 p.m. on TBS

Movie: Die Hard 2

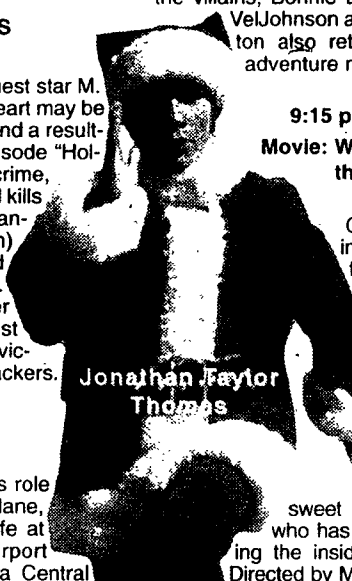

Bruce Willis reprises his role as Detective John McClane, who is waiting for his wife at Dulles International Airport when the extradition of a Central American strongman goes awry, forcing McClane into action. Dennis Franz co-stars as the head of the airport police, and William Sadler leads the villains; Bonnie Bedelia, Reginald VelJohnson and William Atherton also return in the 1990 adventure movie.

9:15 p.m. on TNT

Movie: Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory

Gene Wilder stars in this colorful 1971 film as an eccentric candymaker who takes five contest winners on a tour through his mysterious chocolate factory. Peter Ostrum portrays the sweet but pock Charlie, who has dreamed of seeing the inside of the factory. Directed by Mel Stuart, the film also stars Jack Albertson.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"BAD BOYS II": It took a few years, but after the original film's box-office staying power and seemingly endless cable runs, this lengthy - yet explosive - action sequel from Jerry Bruckheimer reunites Will Smith and Martin Lawrence as Miami police partners. They track down the source of a deadly drug that has inspired a battle among the city's underground factions. In a subplot, the Smith character gets romantically involved with Lawrence's sister (Gabrielle Union, "Bring It On"). Joe Pantoliano plays the detectives' boss. DVD extras: "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; scene-production break-downs; music video.  (R: AS, P, V)

"HOW TO DEAL": After impressing audiences and many critics with her work in "A Walk to Remember," singer-actress Mandy Moore made this light but earnest drama her big-screen follow-up. She plays a teenager who resists romance after seeing her parents' (Allison Janney, Peter Gallagher) marriage dissolve - but she can't resist the persistence of a charismatic classmate (Trent Ford). Alexandra Holden ("Friends") plays Moore's best friend. The soundtrack includes Liz Phair's hit "Why Can't I?" DVD extras: audio commentary by director Clare Kilner and cast members; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; music videos.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"GIGLI": Generally recognized as one of this year's movie debacles, the first screen teaming of affianced couple Jennifer Lopez and Ben Affleck still should hold appeal for avid celebrity-couple watchers - or those who care to see an unbilled Al Pacino. The script by director Martin Brest ("Scent of a Woman") casts Affleck in the title role of an underworld minion dispatched to manipulate a federal prosecutor by kidnapping the lawyer's brother (Justin Bartha). Another gangland operative (Lopez) is sent to help. Christopher Walken co-stars, and if DVD watchers are anticipating an audio commentary - after the picture's near-invisible box-office take - fuhgeddaboutit.  (R: AS, P, V)

"THE BATTLE OF SHAKER HEIGHTS": The second feature to emerge from Ben Affleck, Matt Damon and HBO's "Project Greenlight" initiative, this ambitious drama merges the real and fantasy lives of a young war re-enactor (Shia LaBeouf, "Holes"). While participating in restaged battles, he becomes friendly with another participant (Elden Henson) and eventually makes a romantic play for that mock soldier's older sister (Amy Smart, "Felicity"). Kathleen Quinlan, Shiri Appleby and William Sadler co-star.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"ASSASSINATION TANGO": Oscar winner Robert Duvall puts his skills in dancing the tango to use as star, writer and director of this complex, intriguing drama. He plays a veteran hit man sent to kill a high-ranking Argentinian, and when his mission in that country is delayed, he samples the local flavor - and falls for a dancer (Luciana Pedraza) he meets at a tango club. Kathy Baker ("Picket Fences") plays the girlfriend left behind in New York by the assassin; Ruben Blades also appears. DVD extras: audio commentary by Duvall and Pedraza; deleted scenes; alternate ending.  (R: AS, P, V)

"FIREFLY: THE COMPLETE SERIES": "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" mentor Joss Whedon's much-anticipated science-fiction series barely lasted one season on Fox. (In fact, this four-disc DVD set includes several episodes that never aired.) The show revolves around the missions of Serenity, a transport craft whose crew tackles assignments after a civil war 800 years in the future. Nathan Fillion ("Two Guys and a Girl") plays the vessel's captain. Co-stars include Adam Baldwin, Gina Torres ("Cleopatra 2525"), Sean Maher and Ron Glass. DVD extras: audio commentary by cast and crew members on selected episodes; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; outtakes; Whedon singing the series theme song.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"FREAKY FRIDAY" (Dec. 16): Jamie Lee Curtis and Lindsay Lohan play a mother and daughter who magically switch bodies in this remake of the Disney-studio comedy. (PG: AS, P)

"THE LEAGUE OF EXTRAORDINARY GENTLEMEN" (Dec. 16): Adventurer Allan Quatermain (Sean Connery) leads other legendary figures in a battle against a war-mongering villain. (PG-13: P, V)

"RUGRATS GO WILD!" (Dec. 16): The young, animated friends find fresh adventure with the Wild Thornberrys in this feature-film merging of two popular Nickelodeon shows. (PG: V)

CBS movie gives Jami Gertz an 'Undercover Christmas'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Jami Gertz did relatively little comedy early in her career, but she's making up for it now.

A star of the Monday-night CBS sitcom "Still Standing," the actress stays humorous in "Undercover Christmas," a new CBS movie airing Sunday, Dec. 7. She plays a sassy cocktail waitress protected by a conservative FBI agent ("As the World Turns" veteran Shawn Christian) during the holidays, before she testifies against one of her shadier customers. The plan to keep her completely isolated changes when the Fed must rush to his family's home, giving him no choice but to bring his new charge along.

Just as reserved as he is, his parents (Tyne Daly, Winston Rekert) are surprised by their son's guest - especially since the agent and the waitress pose as a romantically involved couple to conceal the real reason they're in each other's company. Highbrow neighbors initially aren't very accepting of the newcomer's presence, but she eventually starts winning them over and makes her bodyguard see her in a new light.

"The things I love about doing a sitcom," Gertz says, "are maintaining the same schedule and playing the same character. The thing I love about doing a TV movie is having the chance to slip on another skin, which I think is vital for any actor. This film is a little rough around the edges for a Christmas movie; I do get the guy in the end, but it's a little grittier than the norm, which was interesting to me. I also loved the fact that it had comedy and Tyne Daly."

"Judging Amy" regular Daly recently won her sixth Emmy Award (her first for her current series), and Gertz recalls, "When she signed on to do this, I was just so happy. We did the play 'Come Back, Little Sheba' together many years ago at the now-defunct Los Angeles Theatre Center, and she is just so knowledgeable. She also has a wicked sense of humor, and it's such an interesting role reversal for her to play this upper-crust, very repressed woman. Her own family is kind of WASP-y, so she knows these people."

Known to movie audiences through credits such as "The Lost Boys" and "Twister," Gertz was drawn to "Undercover Christmas" more by her character than by the holiday ... particularly since she celebrates Hanukkah. "I liked that she was sexy and that I wouldn't be playing a mom. I'm flattered to still be getting this kind of role. I had also seen some of the work of the director, Nadia Tass ('Child Star: The Shirley Temple Story'), and I wanted to work with her. As soon as she jumped on board, I thought, 'Great. This is gonna be good.'"

As a teenager, Gertz co-starred with Sarah Jessica Parker in the early-1980s series "Square Pegs," but she didn't get back to comedy fully until her guest role on "Ally McBeal" and the title part in the 2002 TV movie "Gilda Radner: It's Always Something." Gertz deems comedy "my first love, because while I was growing up, a sense of humor was always key in my family. Very early on, I kind of got the joke, but I did a lot of drama back then. People didn't think you could look a certain way and be funny."

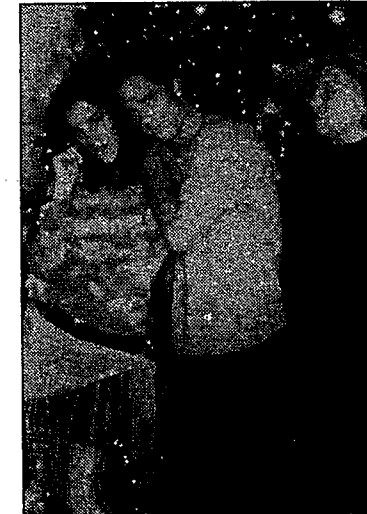

Today, it's just the opposite for Gertz, who cites her weekly exposure on "Still Standing" (on which she plays a blue-collar wife and mother) as the reason she's getting lots of other comedy offers.

"I enjoy making people laugh," she says, "but what's difficult about comedy is that if you don't have the timing down, it doesn't work. Also, you have to play comedy as reality. I saw (the movie) 'Elf' recently and loved it, and the reason it works is that Will Ferrell plays being an elf seriously."

As a wife and mother, Gertz is generally happy to maintain her present work schedule. She admits, though, that it was a personal sacrifice to take a month out of her "Still Standing" hiatus to make "Undercover Christmas." "That was the 'down' side of this. One of the main reasons I'm doing a television series is that I have three children in grammar school, and I want to be home to see them off in the morning, then be back home for dinner."

"I was lucky that this took only a month," Gertz adds. "The Gilda Radner movie took six weeks, which was much tougher. That was done in the middle of winter in Toronto while the kids were all in school, so no one could come visit me. The 'Undercover Christmas' shoot coincided with my two older children being away at sleep-away camp - how bizarre is that? - so the baby and my husband and my parents came with me. It wasn't as bad."

THAT great IDEAS

HONORED BY FORBES ASAP for CHANGING THE WORLD.

Forbes ASAP magazine rated the Bose® Wave® radio right up there with the light bulb, the compact disc and the telephone. Only fifteen inventions made their exclusive "All-Time A-List" of technology breakthroughs that have changed the world, and the Bose Wave® radio is one of them.

Recognizing products "both functional and beautiful," Forbes ASAP credits Bose with managing to fit "really big sound into a really small – and pretty – package."

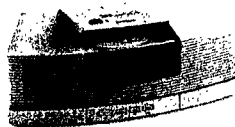

LIFELIKE SOUND

The secret is the Bose acoustic waveguide speaker technology built into the Wave® radio and Wave® radio/CD (shown above). This and other patented Bose technologies deliver rich, full sound with remarkable clarity and deep lows. It's sound you'd never expect from a system this small.

HEAR the DIFFERENCE

The Wave® radio and Wave® radio/CD are available directly from Bose, the most respected name in sound. Our risk-free, 30-day, in-home trial guarantees your satisfaction. Plus, shipping is free. And if you order now, you'll receive a free Bose Multimedia Pedestal – a $99.95 value. When you call, ask about financing options.

As a working mother with two kids, I never made time to clip coupons, until now. With a tight budget, I decided to commit to clipping coupons for a month and check the results. Surprisingly, I have been able to save about 20% off my grocery bill each week with coupons. We've turned coupon clipping into a family event. My kids and I clip coupons for all of the products we use and products we'd like to try. We have more time together and save money each week!
